Fort Dix Elementary School, Howard L. Emmons Elementary School, Joseph S. Stackhouse Elementary School, Pemberton Early Childhood Education Center, and Samuel T. Busansky Elementary School were among 24 schools across the state to receive the distinct designation.

“We are extremely proud of this accomplishment,” Pemberton Township Schools superintendent Jeff Havers said. “Staff members were diligent in their efforts to incorporate character education into the

Criteria for the designations are based on Character.org’s 11

Principles of Effective Character Education, which includes providing students with opportunities for moral action, fostering shared leadership and engaging families and communities as partners in character-building efforts.

Character education is a deliberate effort to create a strong community. In preschool, they are a part of one of their first communities.”

The staples of character education are perseverance, respect, integrity, service and responsibility. Each school exerted their abilities to incorporate these core values into their curriculum to enhance learning.

Busansky, Emmons, Fort Dix, PECEC and Stackhouse were previously named State Schools of Character in 2018. The designation is valid for five years and then the schools must go through the comprehensive evaluation process to apply for the designation again.

Pemberton Township Schools’ five selections were the most of any school district in New Jersey in 2023.

Stackhouse students showed their support for the Pemberton Township Police Department with a Hero Parade, an event that exemplified the core values of respect and service.
